

Numb bottoms, hungry
tummy's and variable
receptivity

‘It was about direct work with families, that is what really drew me to a career in social work. Sadly, that’s not really what we are able to do these days and that’s due to sheer demand on our time...’

Ellen, social worker on Protecting Our Children BBC2

Jo Brand to star in new social work sitcom Social services based comedy 'Damned' will be screened on Sky Arts on 12th June

Here's a blurb about the show from the British Comedy Guide...

Social worker and single parent Rose (Brand) is having a bad day. At work the heating is broken, there's a patronising new temp, and her three kids are off school sick. The chaos of the office is matched only by the chaos of her home life when Rose discovers her mum has misplaced her children. Could her day get any worse? Yes, indeed it could and it does when Rose is confronted with a crisis that even an experienced professional like her could not have anticipated...

<https://www.gov.uk/government/publications/childrens-services-innovation-programme>